‘This is a magazine of the arts and not literature alone’
— The Observer

‘Far and away the most readable and level-headed of the literary magazines’ — The Times

‘A fantastic magazine whose place in the history of 20th century literary life grows ever more secure and significant’
— William Boyd, Evening Standard
The London Magazine was first published in 1732 and is internationally renowned as a publication of distinction. Our journal publishes poetry, short fiction, reviews, history and academic articles from a range of emerging authors and established writers. With a strong presence in contemporary culture we bridge the gap between traditional literary excellence and cutting edge reviews.

Heritage

For 280 years, The London Magazine has been an indispensable feature on the British cultural landscape. We have been responsible for publishing some of the most significant literature in British history from Wordsworth, Shelley and Keats to T. S. Eliot, Sylvia Plath, Dylan Thomas and Doris Lessing.
Our Readers

We have an international customer base with the majority of readers from the UK and a total circulation of 3,000 as well as a strong social media presence. We publish in print, as an ebook and through our app. We also have arrangements with third party digital distributors including ‘Press Reader’ app, ensuring maximum exposure and effective digital distribution.

THE LONDON MAGAZINE WAS FOUNDED IN 1732.

IT IS THE OLDEST LITERARY & CULTURAL JOURNAL IN THE UK.

At The London Magazine we’re always on the look out for new venues and brands to collaborate with on events for our readers and subscribers.

We are particularly interested in promoting the work of new artists and writers so independent galleries and bookshops are of special interest.

As well as hosting well attended issue launches at bookshops and galleries, TLM is constantly seeking new spaces to meet its growing audience. Recent and upcoming events have been held at a wide range of venues in and around London, from independent galleries to the House of Commons.

All of our events present great opportunities for our readers and subscribers to engage with our contributors and the cultural life of London and beyond.
